WILSON PRIZE FUND IS NEAR $700,000

Leaders in Campaign State Foundation Is Expected to Go Over Top.

Today, marking the fifth anniversary of America's declaration of a state of war with Germany, also marked the approach of the $700,000 figure in the national campaign for the Woodrow Wilson Foundation. Contributions continue to come in at a steady rate, according to officials of the committees handling the drive, and many of the largest pledges have yet to be redeemed by cash.

A singular feature of the campaign, according to its directors, has been the remarkable manner in which it has risen above party lines, many of the largest contributions being from republicans.

In fact, in Washington, R. W. Woolley, local chairman, said the largest two contributions have been from republicans and one of the checks in—of a small amount, true—was obtained from one of the men that President Harding named in his cabinet.

Recognition of Services.

The foundation is to be created by public subscription, according to the official announcement, "in recognition of the national and international services of Woodrow Wilson, twice President of the United States, who furthered the cause of mankind and was instrumental in pointing out effective methods for the co-operation of the liberal forces of mankind throughout the world."

The awards from the income of the foundation will be made from time to time by a nationally constituted committee to the individual or group that has rendered, within a specified period, meritorious service to public welfare, democracy, liberal thought or peace through justice.

In other words, America, through the foundation, seeks to establish its own Nobel prizes.

A group of women met on Christmas eve, 1920, to consider what was then a nebulous wish to pay some sort of a tribute to the war President. In their minds were no doubts as to what the verdict of history would be. Their intention primarily was to establish a precedent. If possible, and honor Woodrow Wilson while Woodrow Wilson yet lived. Two weeks after Mr. Wilson had left the White House and had assumed the role of private citizen a meeting was held at a New York hotel, where plans were crystallized into the proposition of creating the Woodrow Wilson foundation.

Under Committee of 250.

A national committee of 250 men and women was organized as the vehicle for attaining the goal of the foundation. The amount of the fund was set at $1,000,000 or more. The appeal issued was worded to "all who believe in those liberal and democratic principles that Woodrow Wilson has so conspicuously championed and who wish to perpetuate the influence of America's great war leader."

The active campaign throughout the country began during the week of January 15, 1922. Headquarters for the national campaign were established at 150 Nassau street, New York, and for Washington at 729 14th street, the latter having now been moved to the Continental Trust building, room 703.

Cleveland H. Dodge was named chairman of the executive committee. Franklin D. Roosevelt was made chairman of the national committee and Hamilton Holt executive director. R. W. Woolley was placed in charge of the District of Columbia area, with Mrs. Kate Trenholm Abrams as chairman of the women's committee for the District.

The start of the actual campaign in Washington, with a quota of $55,000, got underway on January 15. Before the end of the month the $20,000 figure was in sight, and on the night when the Knickerbocker Theater catastrophe fell upon Washington a huge mass meeting had been planned at the Masonic Temple. It was expected that the mass meeting would bring the final figure within easy striking distance, but the snowstorm which kept many away from the Knickerbocker that fatal night also blasted the hopes of a successful mass meeting and marked the start of a hiatus in the campaigning for funds in the District. Nevertheless, checks continue to come in until more than $19,000 actual cash is in bank and approximately $3,000 in immediately collectible pledges is outstanding.

Washington Quota High.

The quota assigned for Washington was regarded as rather high in view of the comparative quotas for other cities. Baltimore was set at $15,000, Boston at $20,000, Philadelphia at $30,000, Rhode Island at $25,000 and Oklahoma at $30,000. The fixing of a large quota here, however, was accomplished because of the high interest in the cause.

cause of the belief that a number of senators and representatives, or persons in other branches of public life would place their contributions in the hands of the local committee.

It did not work out in that way. The officials sent their checks to their home states, or placed them with the local committee, with the request that they be credited to the home states.

In spite of this fact, it is estimated, the amount collected in cash in the District ranks higher, proportionately, with pledges and cash in the consideration, than virtually any other city of the country. This means that the pledges were redeemed more speedily and with greater proportion by cash than elsewhere.

Expect to Go Over Top.

The national campaign supporters expect to have no trouble in going over the top. According to the officials in charge, the intensity of spirit shown by contributors thus far is sufficient to assure success.

Among the members of the executive committee which is continuing the campaign throughout the country are Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, Frank J. Cobb, Stephen P. Duggan, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Edward M. House, Frederick Lynch, Henry Morgenthau, Adolph S. Ochs, Frank L. Polk, Miss Virginia Potter, Miss Caroline Ruess-Rees, Mrs. Charles E. Simonson, Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany and Mrs. H. Otto Wittippen.

Great interest was manifested in Washington at the outset of the campaign. A meeting in a local theater here, when the campaign started, resolved itself into a pilgrimage to the residence of Woodrow Wilson and here it was on January 15 that he spoke in public for the first time since he was President of the United States.

An indication of the international aspect of the campaign may be gained, according to its directors, from the dispatches which Paris and London papers carried regarding it, some of them using as much as 1,500 words of description.

Plans for Awards.

From an announcement of the foundation committee, the following is quoted regarding awards and the administration of them:

"It is the present purpose of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation to raise the endowment. When that has been done, a board of trustees composed of eminent Americans will be appointed and intrusted with the administration of the fund and the granting of the awards for 'meritorious service to democracy, public welfare, liberal thought or peace through justice.'

"No attempt has been made at this time to settle the question of the permanent home of the foundation, specific kinds of public service to be awarded or other matters concerning its future course. The present organization has considered its task to be the creation of the foundation through the widespread support of the nation, leaving the board of trustees to determine the policies with which they will be vitally concerned."

BRIDGETON, N. J., April 6.—This city claims to be the bachelor's paradise.

Of its 15,000 population only one couple decided to marry during the entire month of March, it was learned when city Clerk Charles P. Corey issued the vital statistics for the past month.

The flappers are excited and declare something should be done about it. One suggested a commission to inquire into the cause of the young men's cupid-shyness.
